NOTE: this technical datasheet serves as all other recommendations and technical information, is to describe the product characteristics, mode of use and applications. The information supplied is based on our technical knowledge obtained in the bibliography, laboratory tests and in practice. The data about consumption and dosage contained in this datasheet is based upon extensive experience so these are susceptible to variations due to the different conditions of work. Real consumption and dosages should be decided on -site through preliminary tests and are the responsibility of the customer. For further advice contact our technical service. Microestil Cement, SL reserves the right to update and change the composition of the products. Other product applications that do not conform to those indicated will not be our responsibility. We give guarantee in case of manufacturing defects quality of our products, excluding any other complaints, only to be our responsibility to return the value of the goods supplied.
